Course III: Leading Professional Learning

Contact Us

Our Teacher Leadership Professional Learning Courses effectively build a teacher's capacity to lead and improve professional practice. NNSTOY is an innovative and trusted source of teacher leadership that improves teaching and learning. Courses are available for every educator level and can be on a flexible schedule.

There have been significant shifts in instructional design, educational policy, and classroom practice in recent years. Teacher leaders are often charged with providing their colleagues with relevant professional learning. This course will help you reset professional learning so that it is more meaningful and relevant to teachers and students today. You will learn to design professional learning systems and help colleagues take ownership of their learning. As you grow in your own professional learning, you will build credibility and become a valuable resource to your students, colleagues and community.

This course will enhance your ability to:

- Assess school culture and use it to build effective professional learning systems
- Design and implement professional learning systems
- Learn methods to plan, and measure the impact of professional learning
- Facilitate learning using the latest knowledge about adult learning styles

You will leave with:

- Innovative tools to create sustained professional learning at your school
- Strategies to respond to the diverse learning needs of adult learners in your school or district
- Methods to provide constructive feedback and strengthen teaching practice so that all students can grow
- A path to earning digital credentials in teacher leadership
- An action plan to promote change in your school or district
- A virtual follow up session to support your work on your plan
